Melancholic melodies, opulent sounds, explosive rhythms: With their haunting arrangements Soodalake catapult synth rock into the present time. But not only acoustically they deliver a show beyond the usual. They make also use of visuals and video clips, turning their shows into a slight dark and thrilling live experience.

BIOGRAPHY

What began as a studio project by Falko Lenke and Björn Larisch in 2012, has become a synth rock band well-known outside of their region by now. Both knew each other from playing together in different bands. With the release of their first EP I'm On Fire (2013) and its critical acclaim, it became obvious that people wanted to see Soodalake live on stage. So in 2014 the band performed shows in Bremen, Braunschweig, Hamburg and Worpswede for the first time.

To give their songs a rougher sound, the band started looking for a live and studio drummer. So in 2015 Florian Huchler joined the band, having seen their advert. The live premiere of this new line-up was also the highlight of the 'Wrong Minds Tour' on 10 October, 2015 at Maria's Ballroom in Hamburg.

Subsequently the band played some bigger locations during the 'Bittersweet Tour' in 2016, e.g. at the Kaiserkeller/Große Freiheit in Hamburg. Because of their continued success, the band is currently on their 'Silent Whispers Tour'. The unique opening gig took place at the women's prison in Vechta on 02 April, 2017. Apart from a new show the band also performs new songs, some of them in an unplugged version.
